What's This We See About "All a Mistake?"

By Jovel. Don'tcha know, it's a 3-act, side-splitting comedy by the Irma Y.P.S. to be held Friday, April 7th, at 8:30 p.m. in Kiefer's Hall. A laugh for every line. The following is the cast:
Miss Nellie Huntington, Miss V. Taylor; Richard Hamilton, F. Maguire; Captain George, A. Gamble; Uncle Obadiah, S. W. Magrath; Aunt Cornelia, Miss A. Schen; Ferdinand Lighthelm, L. A. Schen; Miss Nellie Blanchard, Miss A. Coffin; Nellie, the servant, Miss M. Rae.

It's An Old Spanish Custom Or Eighteen Years After

Viking, March 30.
IN A COLD dismal grey prison (there's very few bright ones) somewhere in old Spain, probably romantic Barcelona, is a gentleman suffering duance vile. And, if we take his word for fact, he's been there for nearly two decades and, boys, that's a mighty long time.

We have it authentically the dark-eyed Spaniard (we shall name him Escudero) has viewed cold grey prison walls for at least eighteen years.

It's difficult, I know, to imagine glorious Spain's natural grandeur defiled by the presence of a calaboose; it in turn honored (?) by sheltering Don Escudero. I always visioned Spain a land of beautiful, adorable and lovable young women, plus dashing, debonaire Dons, brave and fearless matadors, and proverbial Fiestas.

Love and the guitar go hand-in-hand in Spain. Methinks even now I can hear Escudero, in his youth, making love to his big moment as he flashes her the doves about the love scene from the portico as he croons pleadingly a la Vallee sweet, soothing, seductive love-drenched tunes that thrill even the doves about the love scene. Seguro! I swear the moon smiled that night. It was a love-lit moon (the soft, velvety June kind) and in its magic splendor gave courage to the gay Cabellero and his betrothed. They flew to the furthest ends of the earth (probably Lac La Biche) and enlist the services of a padre. That is Spain as I have understood it.

Now, let us get back to the prison (some even manage this). Here we see a forlorn Spanish nobleman, Don Escudero, a victim of cruel circumstances—bankruptcy. (Seems the depression has reached even dear old Spain at last). Now, bankruptcy in bull-fight land is infra dig, and they of the earth (probably Lac La Biche) in Canada you hold a closing-out sale, throw-the stock to the four winds until there's nothing left but the bare walls.

Claro! There's a ray of hope for our dejected prisoner of Spain, and from the cold, cold cell he may yet fly. Police authorities have possession of a portmanteau of Escudero's secret wealth and in this portmanteau is a reward I will give up to you the third part of 120,000 dollars. "I cannot receive your answer in the prison but you can send a cablegram to a person of my confidence who will deliver it to me adressed as follows:
"Laine Moral,
"Vilaerde Mar (Spain).
"Assistance: Cartwright."
"On waiting your answer to instruct you all my secret; now I sign only—"
"S. B."
"First of all answer by cable not by letter."

Obviously bankruptcy is the crime supreme in Spain as it is eighteen years ago since the good Don was last heard from, and at that time he lost his heart and offered W. G. Murray, of Viking, a cut of the $300,000. G. declined the offer preferring to stay with his 160 acres all cleared and fenced. Of late, how-

HALF YEARLY PROGRAM

Officers—President, Mrs. Harriet Taylor; vice-president, Mrs. Minnie Thomson; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Jessie Ballentine. Directors: All members. Reporter, Mrs. R. D. Allen.

We are organized democratically with the right to learn by making mistakes, so let us guarantee freedom of thought and freedom of its expression.

"The Price"
Whatever of freedom we own,
Somebody has stolen and tried for it.
By war through the years it has grown.
By strength of the men who have died for it.

Each stone in the structure of truth—
Someone has made ready and right for it.
Someone has spent heart's blood and youth
Someone has been willing to fight for it.

Not always has blood been the pay
But always a price has been paid for it.

The worth of achievement today
Is gauged by the struggle we made for it.
There need not be rancor or hate,
Nor bitterness, terror or blight for it.
But nothing is worthy or great,
Unless you are willing to work for it.

You cannot progress with gold,
(You get but the emptiest shell of it)
But to win it you must hold
You must go through the heat and the toil of it.

You must suffer the sweat and the pain,
You must toil all the day and the night for it.
For nothing worth while you can gain
Unless you are willing to work for it.

The Home
A man can build a mansion
And furnish it throughout.
A man can build a palace
With lofty walls and stout.
A man can build a temple
With high and spacious dome,
But no man in the world can build
That precious thing called home.
So it's a happy faculty
Of woman far and wide
To turn a cot or palace
Into something else beside
Where brothers, sons, and husbands
Tired
With willing footsteps come:
A place of rest where love abounds:
That precious thing called home.

To Canadians Who Fell at Ypres
Mourn for your dead, O Canada.
Yet not as the hopeless weep,
For their was a death for a living hope,
They passed to their quiet sleep.

Remember your dead, O Canada,
Yet not as the hopeless do,
For the God above saw how they died
And His judgment is kind and true.

Pray for your dead, O Canada,
Yet not as the hopeless pray,
For their was a death for a living hope,
They died for the coming day.

Think on these words, O Canada,
Christ died himself to send,
No man hath greater love than this
That he giveth his life for a friend.

THE U.F.W.A. MASQUERADE

(March 21 1933)

The U.F.W.A. masquerade
Was held at Pasmacade,
The memory of it will not fade.
People came on every trail;
Snow banks did not make 'em daunted,
The treat at Pasmacade they wanted.

O boy! the only fault was the crowd,
Just packed, so was the lunch.
And I know the majority voted
They all seemed to have a "hunch"
That a while of a time was at the school!
When the fun began they couldn't keep cool.

The make-up there sure caused laughter:
The king of hearts took first prize,
The Ukrainian girl also took first after.
When the masks were removed,
The second went to Martha Washington,
The other to the "comic son of a gun."

The judges had their work cut-out.
Fate sure was against the "Hobo."
They said he was the first, without a doubt,
But one of the judges said, "O no!"
Previous to that with his make up:
She refused him defiantly for a waltz.

The judges were Mrs. Ben and—
Miss McDonald and Mrs. Nev.
They all worked hard in hand,
Until Mont, the Hobo, was first drew.
Mrs. Nev. discovered, although he looked grubby,
That she had refused that waltz with her hubby!

The Indian chief without a flaw,
And the old sailor bold.
The chief looked great with his charming square,
I must tell of the pirate in the hold.
Several sailors were on the "deck,"
That the pirate thought more of his neck.

The lady pirate seemed sedate,
I too, met the gypsy fortune teller.
The pilot seemed lost without her mate,
He sure was some brave "feller."
"Did the ghost frighten you, Bobby?"
I saw you beat it when in the lobby!"

The bride there and groom at the bust,
The little flower girl with her basket level.
One thing to mention, I simply must:
It was the bride dancing with the devil.
George Washington seemed rather shy,
And I know "he" never told a lie!

The two little girls in blue, oh boys!
Very attractive, sometimes half-dressed.
Looking like two little boys:
They really should have been in bed!
I'm sorry there were four in blue,
A dainty ribbon on each shoe.

The Irish washerwoman's dance was O.K.
Lucy and Doris sure displayed their skill;
A credit to their tutor, I'll say.
As all others present will
Those not mentioned forgive me, please,
The Irma Times won't hold the "whole cheese."

In conclusion allow me to congratulate
The U.F.W.A. ladies for the lunch,
The endless variety, and how they all ate.
And the coffee sure had a punch.
Now, boys! together, hip, hip, hooray,
Hang around—you'll get more some day.

—Jim Nottingham.

Mrs. Fred Bingham, Swift Current, Sask., writes:—"I was bothered with palpitation of the heart, and my nerves were so bad I could not sleep."

May Be Empire Port

Halifax Strategically Situated To Become Great Flying Centre

Visions of Halifax as an important empire airport were described by Prof. F. E. Plumber, who is scouting for the Union of South Africa government, visiting different countries, studying air policies and gathering data.

Prof. Plumber, who is professor of geography in the University of Pretoria, has spent three months studying conditions in United States and Canada. He stopped on his way to Liverpool, England, and visited the Halifax airport. He told Don Saunders, manager of the port, that he was greatly impressed with the activity of Halifax Aero Club.

"Halifax is strategically situated for development as a great flying centre," he said, and with the development that is bound to come in the next few years, which includes putting into effect a ship-to-shore air mail service and the establishment of cross-country air routes, Halifax ought to become an important empire airport."

Radio On "Muskeg" Train

For some time the de luxe transcontinental trains of the south have been equipped with radio receiving sets, and now the famous "Muskeg" train, which operates between the Pas and Churchill, Manitoba, has a "set." Walter Evans, conductor of the wilderness train has installed a cabinet instrument in his caboose.

Population Is Dense

Cochin, a state of British India, now has an average of 814 persons to the square mile, thus making it the most densely populated area in the world. The Canadian figure is less than three and on the Cochin basis there would be 3,036,220,000 people in this land.

For World Recovery

Address: By Hon. H. W. Rowell Indicates Steps Needed To Be Taken

"It is clear that certain fundamental conditions must be complied with before world recovery can be said to be in sight," Mr. Rowell said. "First, the question of intergovernmental war debts and reparations must be finally and satisfactorily settled. Secondly, a solution of the disarmament problem must be found which is acceptable to both France and Germany, as well as the other powers, and which will materially reduce the burden of taxation now resting upon the nations for the maintenance of armaments, and, above all, the suspicion and distrust which huge armaments engender. Thirdly, there must be an abandonment of the extreme economic nationalism which has characterized most countries of the world since the World War, and a return to saner and more normal conditions of trade.

"Tariffs must be reduced, restrictions on exchange must be modified, and the obstructions to the channels of international trade must be removed. Fourthly, some understanding must be arrived at among the nations of the world as to a common medium of currency and exchange, and if that common medium is to be gold there must be an international understanding which will, in a measure, restore the balance among the nations and prevent a repetition of the situation which has so interfered with international trade during the last few years."

Linking National Parks

Highway Between Banff and Jasper Is Nearing Completion

Two of the largest and most attractive of the National Parks of Canada—Jasper National Park and Banff National Park, both in the province of Alberta, the former in Northern Alberta, with an area of 4,200 square miles, the latter on an east slope of the Rocky Mountains, 2,585 square miles in area—will soon be linked by a 150-mile highway. When completed this highway will pass through the very heart of some of the most impressive scenery in the Rockies. The highway is being constructed by the National Parks Branch of the Canadian Government, which has administration over these and other national parks.

Since the establishment of the national parks over 500 miles of standard gravel highway has been constructed, linking the parks with the main arteries of motor travel and opening up the outstanding beauty spots of these vast playgrounds.

Made Study Of Criminals

Japanese Prison Official Says Worst Type Are Generally Bald

The worst type of habitual criminal is generally bald, according to Dr. Kinzo Saka, of the Fukuoka Prison, Tokyo, who has just completed an extensive study of 1,521 criminals occupying 10 years. In the course of that work he found nine typical habitual criminals. They had from 16 to 29 criminal convictions, and had spent from 20 to 50 years in prison. They were all bald.

YOUR LIVER'S MAKING YOU FEEL OUT OF SORTS

Wake up your Liver

—No Calomel needed

When you feel blue, depressed, sour on the world, that's your liver which is pouring its daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels. Digestion and elimination are being slowed up, food is accumulating and staying inside you and making you feel wretched. More bowels-movers like salts, oil, mineral water, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage, don't go far enough. Carter's Little Liver Pills is the best one. Safe. Purely vegetable. Bure. Ask for them in name. Refuse substitutes. 25c. at all drug stores. 52

No Argument

The Court was trying a case which had arisen out of a car accident. "You say you were half scared to death," said counsel for the defence. "I know very well I was," said the victim, with warmth.

"Then," said counsel coldly, "how do you know it was a motor car, or something resembling a motor car, that hit you?"

The victim looked square at him. "It resembled one all right," he replied. "I was forcibly struck by the resemblance."

Wanted To Learn

The register at the Maryland Institute Art School answered the telephone. A feminine voice enquired: "Will you please give me some information about your class of whistlers?" "Whistlers?" exclaimed Smull. "Why, yes," said the gentle voice. "I read of your exhibition of Whistler's work and I think I should like to join your class."

Hikers On Maine Highways Must Face On-Coming Cars

The State of Maine is giving official recognition to the rights of the pedestrian to a limited use of its highways. That is a concession. Actually the pedestrian has the right-of-way over the cars—but the cars have the momentum. But the hikers in Maine are going to have a legislative enactment requiring pedestrians to walk on the left side of the highway. Such a walker would face oncoming cars, and be in greater safety than if on the other side. Motorists would be no less relieved from a hazard that distresses conscientious persons as they drive.—Brandon Sun.

"The prettiest rag rugs I ever saw"

"I feel I should share with you a wonderful compliment I had on my new rag rugs," writes an appreciative Three Rivers woman. "A wealthy lady from the City of Quebec was visiting here and saw the rag rugs I had just finished. She was so enthusiastic—said she had never seen such artistic ones, with such rich, lovely colors. She asked me if I bought new materials to get such beautiful color effects. When I told her I had dyed my old scraps with Diamond Dyes, she simply couldn't believe it. Of course I'm very proud of my rugs. Besides being beautiful colors, they are fast and washable." In the popular new art of rug making women are finding again the real value of Diamond Dyes for permanent dark colors by boiling. No other dyes make old materials look so new and rich in color because no other dyes contain so much of the finest aniline colors. For light dainty shades without boiling for lingerie, summer blouses and dresses, use the wonderful new Diamond Tints. All drug stores have both Diamond Dyes and Diamond Tints.

Supplies From Britain

Imports Of New Products From the United Kingdom

Outstanding characteristic of the imports into Canada from the United Kingdom during the first nine months of the present fiscal year was the increase in many raw products that are to be finished in this country or to play some part in manufacture, said Hon. H. H. Stevens in a statement issued regarding trade with the United Kingdom.

"It is encouraging," said the minister of trade and commerce, "to note the diversity of these increasing demands for supplies from Great Britain."

Cannot Issue Special Coins

Government Has Refused Request By City Of Toronto

In these days of discussion regarding stamp bills, flat money and other methods of ridding Canada of its share of the depression, it is interesting to note that the issue of money in any form for special purposes is contrary to all British practice. None but the King may benefit by the issue of coinage.

Some time ago it was suggested to Ottawa that the Canadian government authorize a special issue of 50-cent pieces in order that Toronto might facilitate the financing of the 1934 centennial celebration. It was estimated that a substantial profit might be realized in selling these at a premium over the counter to souvenir hunters and coin collectors. Mayor Stewart asked, of course, for a monopoly on the sale for the city of Toronto.

However, His Majesty's government, through Ottawa, has ruled that important as the occasion may be, such a precedent cannot be established in the case of Toronto, according to a report made to the centennial committee.

France Has Largest Gun

Throws One-and-a-Half Ton Shell Over Eleven Miles

Just to add spice to the disarmament discussions, it is announced that France has built the largest gun in the world. It is a 52-centimeter howitzer. That is a 20.4-inch calibre and is larger than the 18-inch naval piece which was built by Britain during the war and mounted on H.M.S. Furious and the monitor Lord Clive. Britain had discussed building a gun of 20-inch calibre, but it was never manufactured.

The new howitzer of the French can throw a shell weighing 3,080 pounds a distance of 11½ miles. When you think of projecting a chunk of metal weighing more than 1½ tons through the air to drop on a building or some other target, the imagination is stretched to contemplate the possible damage from the explosion. The gun is carried on a railway mounting 98 feet long and weighing 265 tons.

More Fire Protection

Travellers Ask For Better Inspection Of Hotels In Saskatchewan

Pointing to the need for adequate inspection of Saskatchewan hotels to afford guests protection against fire hazards, members of the Associated Canadian Travellers at their monthly luncheon in Saskatoon recently, declared themselves unanimously in favor of government action leading to the enforcement of existing regulations providing for fire escapes. It was the opinion of speakers that travellers, who were the largest class of country hotel users, were the proper individuals to request government action. The recent Tisdale tragedy was cited to show the dangers of hotels lacking fire escape equipment.

Meaning Of "Gentile"

The word "Gentile" actually means an alien, an outsider. It was applied by the Jews to any one not of the Jewish faith. The early Christians applied the term to one either Jewish or non-Christian. The Romans applied it as a civil distinction to all who were not Roman citizens.

Radium Worker Dead

Second One Of Five Facing So Death By Poisoning

Miss Katharine Schaub, one of five women who brought suit against the United States Radium Corporation of Orange in 1928, claiming her death was merely a matter of a few years as a result of radium poisoning, died in Mountain View Rest. She was the second of the five to die.

Dr. Harrison S. Maitland, chief medical examiner of Essex County, performed an autopsy and announced the cause of death as carcinoma of the left thigh, a disease directly attributable, he said, to the radium poisoning.

The five women brought suit for $250,000 each and won awards of $10,000, free medical care and annuities of $400. They were poisoned, it was held by Dr. Maitland, who wrote extensively on the subject at the time, by tipping with their tongues the points of brushes used to paint the dials of watches.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued

In his cabin, with the steamer throbbing on toward Steel-End, Alan wondered what Joyce's reaction would be if he should go to her and frankly tell her about that tragic incident in his life which had brought about his engagement to Elizabeth. Joyce would understand his motive. She would no longer think he'd acted of his own free will. Perhaps if she knew this truth, she might allow him to resume their old intimacy. . . . But Elizabeth, what of her? She was waiting, waiting there at Endurance, for him to marry her. In honor and faith he could not break away now. That secret and powerful circumstance still bound him and would bind him to her all his life.

A half-mile up in the fleecy clouds up above the pretty city of Edmonton, Mr. "Buzzard" Featheroff was dropping out toy parachutes carrying free cakes and printed matter of the E-Z Kleen Soap and Washing Powder Company, Ltd.

He was tired, stiff, hungry and indescribably bored.

During the late war Buzzard had knocked an assorted number of Fokkers, Taubers and Albatrosses out of the air; had come down himself a couple of times rather precipitately; and once, commanding a five-plane circus, had brought down a Super-Zeppelin in the Channel after it had dropped its "eggs" in cabbage patches around darkened London.

Since his return to Canada, Buzzard had taken a fling at aerial map-making in British Columbia, had worked a season with the Manitoba Fire Prevention as a "smoke hawk," had bombed paper-mache French chateaux down amid the flowers and climate of Los Angeles.

Recently, tired of working for other folk, he had raked together some money and bought a machine of his own, which he now was flying.

It was a queer nameless contraption, this monoplane of his—an assemblage of piano wire, canvas, spruce and iron, held together by luck and Buzzard's lizardry at flying. It had originally been a White Speedair with "Jenny" engine, but he had redoped the fabric and put in a second-hand Whirlwind and equipped it with third-hand under-gear of the float-wheel type, and overhauled it generally till little of the original machine remained. Only his warm friendship with the aviation inspector kept it from being junked. But somehow—and this is the rock-bottom test of any flying machine—it had never yet come down before Buzzard wanted it to. And it did have speed; anything lacking speed would never have satisfied him. Such as it was, it was his very own; and no mother was ever prouder of a cross-eyed snaggle-toothed child than Buzzard was of his White Speedair.

He was, however, ambitious to get a big new De Havilland, so that he could safely take up a girl down in Kamloops and carry her along with him on his airy path of life. But with no advertising or big company to back him, Buzzard had found this freedom was to be bought with sweat. Had found difficulty keeping up repairs on his old machine, let alone getting a new one. Jobs were sheer accidents. Except for the faint possibility of murdering some more grasshoppers over near High Hat, the work he was finishing this noon was the last thing in sight.

As he heaved overboard the last of the E-Z Kleen Soap and printed matter, and headed back for the landing field, he yawned and swore: "The devil with this peace-time stuff; Oh, Lord, I wish they'd bring on another unpleasantness."

It was in some such frame of mind, as he landed and crawled out of the cockpit, that he saw a tall lanky individual, in lace boots, khaki trousers, jacket and gray hat, get out of a waiting taxi and saunter toward him. The stranger, as he came up, looked at the machine with that peculiar respectful gaze of a person who has never flown in one.

Buzzard thought, "If that fellow asks me to take him for a joy ride, I'll murder him with a monkey-wrench!" A moment later, as he got a closer look at that hard purposive face, he decided: "No, he's not that kind. Looks like some timber duke. Maybe wants me to fly him out to his limit. Thirty-dollar job—dam-will!" The stranger came on. "Hello."

Buzzard answered tartly, "Hello yourself."

The stranger paid no attention to the brusque reply. Instead he reached out his hand. It was a good-looking hand, big, calloused, fingers like iron bars.

"Name's Baker," he introduced himself. "Alan Baker."

Buzzard partly thawed. This fellow Baker looked to be somebody. His slow smile was mighty fetching; his clear intelligent eyes were kindly, warm, friendly.

"Glad to know you, Baker. Mine's Featheroff—James Arbutnot Featheroff."

"Good gracious! All that? But what do people call you?"

They both grinned. "They call me 'Buzzard.' Wear red helmet; never stop my wings."

"'Buzzard'—that's more like. I saw you sailing around up there when I got off the train. Made inquiries and hustled out here to the field. Was on my way down to Winnipeg. Expected I'd have to go down there, or maybe to Calgary, to find a machine and a pilot."

"Uh-uh."

Baker jerked his thumb at the plane. "Those is that."

"Looking at you. Belongs to me and myself. Unlimited. Bought it with cigarette coupons."

Baker Jerked His Thumb at the Plane—"Whose Is That?"

Baker's face brightened a little, and now Buzzard noticed that this hard-bitten man was deeply worried but was hiding his trouble and talking with a jest on his lips.

"So the machine belongs to you. Glad to hear that. Working on your own hook, I suppose? That's still better. Say, Featheroff, how long are you booked up ahead?"

Buzzard had found it good policy to lie. If he made out there was a crushing demand for his services, it impressed people and got him jobs—sometimes.

"Oh, about two months," he said carelessly. "All depends on how much flying weather I get."

Baker plucked a blade of grass and chewed it meditatively. Finally he asked: "Say, Featheroff, you couldn't shake free for a couple or three weeks, could you? Get sick, or have to get married, or something like that?"

Buzzard took thought as he batted an eye. A couple or three weeks. . . . Must be a good-sized job. . . . Oh, d—n the pay! Always thinking of pay. Getting commercial. . . .

"I might," he answered. "Depends. What kind of flying do you want me to do? What for a job is it?"

"That would take me some time to explain. I wouldn't want any man to tackle it without him understanding the whole thing, or then he might feel I'd dragged him into trouble."

Something in Baker's tone made Buzzard look at him sharply. "Nothing illog—crook—out of the ordinary, is it?"

"It's all three, and then some." Buzzard bit his cigarette. "And then some! My eyes! Where're you declaring war on?"

"If you want to know who I am, I was in the Mounted. The O.C. here at Edmonton can tell you about me. And I can give you other references."

"You were in the Mounted?" Buzzard frowned thoughtfully. "Baker?"

"The Mounted. . . . Say, haven't I heard you somewhere. . . . Are you that Sergeant Baker down north near the Arctic?"

Alan nodded. "My eyes! I've read about some of your doings. You're on a detective trick or something like that, Baker?"

With expert judgment Alan had been sizing up his new acquaintance, from his brick-red helmet, down across his oil-spattered jumpers, to his "side-walk" shoes. He read the daredevilry in this Featheroff. He was a man after Alan's own heart. And he had a machine of his own! If only he'd go, it would save precious days looking for a plane and pilot.

Alan said: "My story is a long one. You look as hungry as I feel. . . ."

"I am, Baker. Let's go eat and then talk."

Alan helped him pull a canvas over the machine. Together they stepped over to the taxi. As they rambled down town they swapped war yarns, discovered several mutual acquaintances and came down to "Alan" and "Buzzard."

At the bateau MacDonald Alan sent a telegram to Colonel Steele in Victoria. He wrote it swiftly, not daring to think twice of the fatal step.

"Am out of Mounted accepting your fine offer will you wire me five hundred as salary advance would be mighty grateful letter following with details."

"ALAN BAKER." He and Buzzard ate dinner; and then for a solid hour Alan talked. He told of the Midnight Sun robbery, of the chase, flight, escape, of Dave MacMillan's trouble; of his resolve to help Joyce; of Joyce going bravely back to the lonely trading station; of his run-in with Haskell, his getting busted, his buying out of service, his thousand-mile trip to Edmonton.

"But just where do the old crate and me come in at?" Buzzard asked. To Be Continued.)

Low Price For Potatoes

U.S. Farmers Left Over Million Bushels In Fields Last Fall

Enough potatoes to have saved Ireland from its potato famine three-quarters of a century ago were left in the fields last fall by United States farmers, who found it didn't pay to harvest them. The Department of Agriculture estimated that 1,600,000 bushels were left in the field, mostly in Minnesota and North Dakota. It is said 220,600,000 bushels were harvested, of which nearly one-half had been sold on January 1.

Over-Production Of Tea

Supply Greatly Exceeds Demand and Market Is Glutted

There have been for some time past two policies before the tea industry. One was to restrict production in the hope thereby of forcing up prices. The other was to leave production untouched but to seek fresh markets. The latter policy is almost impossible to carry out in the face of restrictions on trade in every quarter. In microcosm the tea industry reflects the troubles of all the big industries of the world; world production is at least 20 per cent. ahead of world consumption. The market is glutted with tea; London stocks at the end of 1932 were forty-one million pounds in excess of stocks at the end of 1931. And as output has increased, so have prices slumped. The old distinction between medium and common teas has disappeared, and if the unrestricted production of the last year or two continues the price for good tea will go the same way too, and about one-third of India's tea gardens will be forced to close down—Calcutta Englishman.

Little Helps For This Week

"Show me Thy ways O Lord; teach me Thy paths."—Psalm 24.

That which is so often asked of God is not so much His will and way as His approval of our way.—S. F. Smiley.

When we cannot see our way, let us trust and still obey: He who bids us forward go, Cannot fail the way to show. Though the sea be deep and wide, Though a passage seem denied; Fearless let us still proceed, Since the Lord vouchsafes to lead.

There is nothing like the first glance we get at duty before there has been any special pleading of our affections or inclinations. Duty is never uncertain at first. It is only after we have become involved in the mass of wishing things were otherwise than they are that it seems indistinct. Considering a duty is often explaining it away. Deliberation is often dishonesty. God's guidance is plain when we are true.—F. W. Robertson.

Proved Good Friend

Motorist Was Rewarded For Giving Man a Ride

A friendly motorist speeding toward Kingston, Ontario, picked up a pedestrian. He commenced again to speed up around 60 miles per hour. Overhauled by an officer, his name was taken and he was told to appear in court at Kingston on such a day. When he let down his pedestrian in the Limestone City, the latter turned to him and said: "I appreciate your kindness. I am on parole and have to report at Portsmouth, and just to show you my appreciation for the ride, here is the book of the motor cycle cop with your entry in it."

THE ARTIST'S SWEETHEART

I know that you have made me live Upon the canvas there; Although, perforce, your brush must give More beauty than my share.

But in your eyes—ah! well I know You saw me full of grace. And that is why you limned me so, Fair form and ardent face.

Another artist might have said: "She lacks this hue, that line, With too much pride she lifts her head. Her hands are far from fine."

But you have glimpsed within the clay

What others cannot see, A spirit shining as the day, The inner self of me.

And you have painted what I seem To love's transforming sight: Not just a woman, but a dream Of all things pure and bright!

Puzzle More Important

Have you heard the new story about the latest parlor game? The lady of the house suggested to her maid that she make some biscuits for luncheon. "I'm sorry, Mrs. Jones," returned the maid, "but I can't do it. I've got a jigsaw puzzle on the bread board."

Policeman: "What are you standing here for?"
Lover: "Nothin'."

Policeman: "Well, just move on. If everyone stood in one place, how would the rest get past?"

FOR ANY PAIN

Have you ever found any quicker relief than this?

Anyone can take Aspirin, for doctors have declared these tablets perfectly safe.

And there is no quicker form of relief for any pain.

It is well to remember these things when anyone tries to persuade you to try anything in place of these tablets.

Aspirin may be taken as often as there is any need of its comfort: to stop a headache, throw off a cold, drive away the pains from neuralgia, neurtis, rheumatism, lumbago, etc.

Whenever you take Aspirin you know you are going to get immediate results—and you know there will be no ill effects. You know what you are taking.

Why take chances on some form of relief which may not be as swift—may not be as safe? The new reduced price on bottles of 100 tablets has removed the last reason for over experimenting with any substitute for Aspirin!
